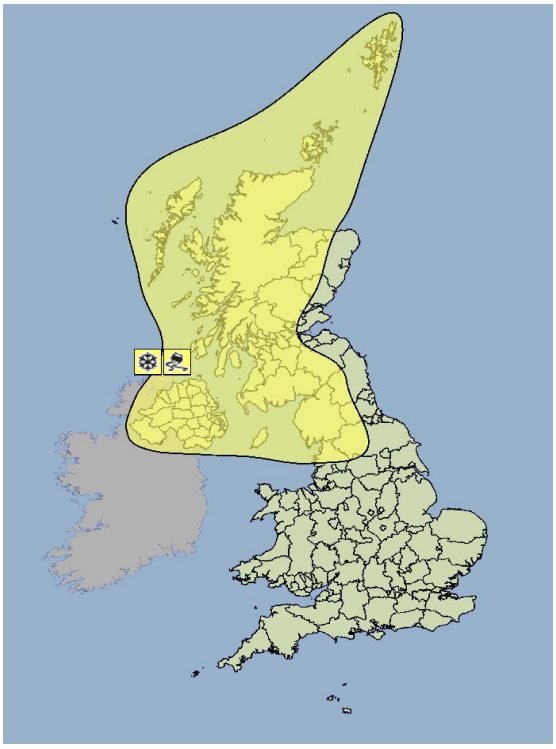
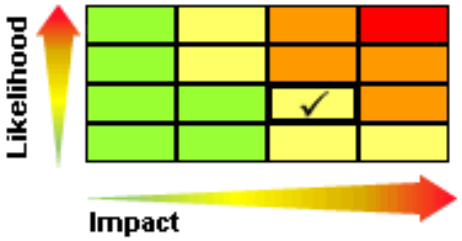
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
Frequent showers of hail and snow are expected through Monday morning and the first half of Monday afternoon. Showers will be heavy, with lightning an additional hazard. 2-5 cm of snow is likely to accumulate relatively widely, with some areas, particularly above 150 m, possibly seeing 6-10 cm of snow. Strong winds will lead to drifting of snow, with temporary blizzard conditions over higher routes. The showers will gradually become less frequent and heavy through the day.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Snow and Ice

Valid from 00:05 on Mon, 12th Feb 2018 until 15:00 on Mon, 12th Feb 2018

Frequent, heavy hail and snow showers are expected during Monday morning and the first half of the afternoon and will lead to ice and snow accumulating on many surfaces.

Longer journey times by road, bus and train services are likely while some vehicles could become stranded. Ice is likely to form on untreated pavements, cycle paths and roads leading to some injuries from slips and falls. Power cuts may occur and other services, such as mobile phones, may be affected.
